Franklin Township contracts with Northern Regional based on a formula which took into consideration population, mileage, and incidents covered, said Lastoskie.

The "biggest stumbling block" between Franklin Township and Dillsburg Borough was part of the budget they should be responsible for, as well as their approach, said Lastoskie.

As far as the police coverage goes, the board had "no complaints, conflicts or criticisms," he said. "The problem is not with the police, but with Dillsburg Borough and the Carroll Township Supervisors," he later added.

Following the motion, Lastoskie said that perhaps they are the "mavericks and will make them (Carroll Township and Dillsburg police forces) look at what they want in the future." "Any movement towards regionalization by them would be beneficial to Franklin Township," he concluded.

A popular consensus by the public was that the board had their minds made up before that night's meeting.

"I did not hear any input tonight that I haven't heard before that altered my decision," said Lastoskie.

Dillsburg Borough plans tax hike

Carroll Township tax payers.

Chief Smith argued gainst the Carroll Township figures which Foreman said he had obtained from Carroll Township Supervisor David Lavertue. Leigh Myers of Second Street, who had presented the council with a petition signed by more than 300 residents and business owners asking for 24-hour police protection, told Foreman there are other areas in which to cut expenses.

Councilman Darwin Moyer apparently agreed with Myers. Later in the meeting, he stated, "We asked our police to cut expenses, let's ask our administrative office to cut back."

Moyer proposed that no more overtime be granted in the borough except in emergency situations designated by the borough manager and/or the chief of police.

Heyers pickup skidded off the road into a large ditch, causing it to flip onto its roof.
